

Curriculum Vitae

José Salgueiro Carlos Vasconcelos e Sá was born in Lisbon in 1957. Concluded the degree of the Social Communication course (now called Communication Sciences), Faculty of Social and Human Sciences, (FCSH), New University of Lisbon (UNL). A year later applies for and is admitted to the Master's course of FCSH/UNL Communication Sciences.

In 1995 performs tests Master's dissertation, in which obtains the rating of Very Good. He practiced the profession of journalist for 4 years and has taught for 25 in higher education, during which guided stages and collaborated in postgraduate courses.

He taught, among others disciplines, Sociology of Communication, Communication Theories, Argumentation Theory, Screenplay Theory and Technique, Semiotics, Introduction to Contemporary Thought, History of Journalism, Media Discourse Analysis, History of Communication and Advertising Media and Marketing.

He participated in several research projects and collaborated regularly on "Interaction" magazine.

He is currently professor in the Lusophone University of Humanities and Technology (ULHT) and Polytechnic Institute of Santarém (IPS) and is preparing a doctoral thesis on the theme "Communication Networks and Utopia".

March 2016