Irina Seits, PhD student at Södertörn University in Stockholm. I have two MAs in History and Fine Arts (St. Petersburg State University, 2006 and European University at St. Petersburg, 2008). I participated in several International conferences on architecture with reports published in conference editions. My research interests lay within the history of modernist architecture of the 1920s (Soviet constructivism, European functionalism) as well as history of mass housing construction and formation of the contemporary living space.
