

Curriculum vitae

Natacha Crocoll was delivered in 2015 a Masters degree in Spanish culture, language and literature from the University of Geneva. During her studies, she also spent a semester in the Universidad Complutense of Madrid, where she took classes of medieval and colonial Spanish literature. She is presently preparing a PhD in the University of Geneva under the direction of Pr. Carlos Alvar on landscapes in medieval Castilian literature. Her academic researches and interests include medieval narrative, the creation of imagery and symbolic traditions.