

SHORT CURRICULAR NOTE

Mário AVELAR, Professor of English and American Studies (Universidade Aberta - Portuguese Open University), Phd on American Literature (Lisbon University), Researcher of ULICES (Lisbon University), Member of the Board of the Lisbon Geographical Society, Coordinator of Thematic Commission of Higher Education of the Community of Portuguese Speaking Countries (CPLP), Former President of the Anglo-American Portuguese Studies Association, Former member of the board of the European Society for the Study of English, Former Vice-Rector of Universidade Aberta. Author of several books and articles on American Studies, on English Studies, on the relationship between poetry and the visual arts (a new book of his will be published this year by the Portuguese National Press – Imprensa Nacional – Casa da Moeda), and on Film Studies. He has translated, among others, Herman Melville, Sylvia Plath, Robert Lowell, Virginia Woolf, G.M. Hopkins, Mary Renault, Lewis Carroll. He is the author of two novels and his Collected Poems will be published later this year.