

SHORT CURRICULAR NOTE

Annalisa Di ROMA (Gioia del Colle (BA), il 28.07.1973) since December 2016 PhD Associate Professor in Industrial Design, since December 2008 PhD Assistant professor in Industrial Design (S.S.D. Icar-13) at the Polytechnic of Bari. Enrolled at Architects Council of Taranto n. 604. In 2005-2007 – Post PhD Fellowship; in 2004 - PhD in Architectural Design; 2000 - Graduated in Architecture.

The main research interests, from PhD, are focused on updating the language of the artifacts, from the artistic industry issues until the digital industry and craft. Actively involved in the Apulian Regional industrial and creative districts.

Since 2001 actively involved in research projects co-financed by national and EU Public Institutions. Since 2003 regular speaker at national and international conference and meetings, as well as reviewer of international scientific journals in the fields of Industrial design. She has obtained many acknowledgments, prizes and mentions in the field of applied activity in architectural project and industrial design for international and national competitions.