SHORT CURRICULAR NOTE

Kim GROOP is a university teacher, associate professor (docent) and researcher in church history at Åbo Akademi University in Finland. He is also Head of Education for Theology at the Faculty of Arts, Psychology and Theology at the university. In his research he focuses on the history and legacy of the Christian mission and on European colonialism in Africa; in particular, in Tanzania and Namibia. He also takes a keen interest in issues relating to cultural memory and political uses of the past. In this work he focuses on Protestantism, Pietism, and Christian mission in Finland and Africa, and on the "re-building" of sites of cultural memory in the former GDR.
